

Polis Stanislaw

We had but one or two of the name of Stanislaw. Old Polis Stanislaw was of a different tribe & married in. He was drowned at the seachine ~~popis~~ hunting; his ~~came~~ <sup>came</sup> ~~tribed~~ <sup>tribed</sup> ~~men.~~ <sup>men.</sup>

Old Polis wore a long grater at a time when beards were never seen. He was of a quiet & obliging but very persistent disposition. When setting traps & ~~reference~~ ~~was~~ pointed out which he did not like very well he always applied his formula - The conversation was about as follows always -

"Polis, this is a good place to set a trap."

"Jee so you think so" (Still paddling)

"Better try it?"

"Jee so you speak so." (Still paddling)

"It looks well."

"Jee so you say so" (Paddling on)

"Now hadn't we better go in?"

"Jee so you mind to" - (By this time they were past)
