Am glad to hear,

That Barkaby's relation is interesting, The Mattanawcack idea is interesting, as starting up a Third claimant in the case. You see, I was perfectly satisfied with the little cut-off islands as the basis till I got to Lincoln. Then Hutter's meaning is a fourth. In no doubt some of the old words in common use have gone out & equivalents come in, as apparently is Ag-amunticus, which no Indian I have met it to has made anything at all of. The present description would be from another radical.
Hereabouts & southward we get two forms for that island case: The usual one is chip-or flip-, shut off, puffed. The other form is in pem-, like pemaguid & panunkty.
Your meaning for Agamunticus is most reasonable, to me. Since writing last I have been playing with the harbor idea,
