Q. Does the law make it any more your duty to go after runaways than anybody else? A. I am not aware that it does, but I would not like to testify that it does not. My impression is that there is no definite phrase that would cover that case.

Dr. Qahs: Have you ever apologized to Dr. Washburn for getting impatient at that time
 Witness: Yes sir.

Q. Was this in substance what you said: "I have made up my mind to tell you if you are going to allow Bangs and Guffell" (and some others you mentioned) "to go where they choose, I shall not go after them". Is that about it? A. I want to know who is testifying here?

Q. I am asking you if this is it? "I have made up my mind —"

A. I have heard a man lie about it within a few minutes, and I want to know who is testifying. I know when a man lies.

Q. Did you use those words or words of that meaning? A. No, sir, not exactly as they are given there. As near as
